[REDACTED] costs now owing for the firearms case which stand at about £33K which he currently owes. This is a debt he needs to pay and is in real terms a higher figure than they [REDACTED] seek before the petty debts court. [REDACTED]

Hopefully subject to a strongly worded agreement, we can't guarantee he will agree, the matter will stop and he will not be able to make any further 'noise' without breaching the agreement, in which case we are back to square one. Comms team tell me local media have little appetite for further reporting, again we shall see.

As stated below he is still pursuing a number of strands of complaint under the police discipline regulations against [REDACTED], two of which are being progressed by outside forces. There is still much work to do. [REDACTED]

I understand that the [REDACTED] did a bit of explaining to RC as to what his best day in court would look like for these proceedings, what he seeks will just about cover the bills he's already incurred via the firearms case. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] made a final offer which appears to have some traction subject to the finer bits of negotiation.

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] I am minded to accept as he is still running with the Police Complaints Law issues.
